SPORTSMEN ENJOY FINE BANQUET

HEAR PEPPY TALKS ON GAME CONSERVATION

MacGillivray Shows Movie Views of Wild Life.

It was a lively gathering at the sportsmen banquet and meeting held at the Board of Trade club rooms Thursday night of last week. About sixty sat down to a fine six o'clock dinner that was put on for the association by Chef Wm. H. Cady. The menu consisted of the following: Roast veal and boiled ham, mashed potatoes, baked beans, salad, rolls, celery, coffee, ice cream and cake. During the banquet music was furnished by Clark's orchestra, which rendered many fine selections.

T. W. Hanson, president of the association, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced speakers as follows: Editor Eugene Matheson, Roscommon; James MacGillivray, official photographer, State department of conservation; Mr. Allen of Gaylord; Editor Will MacGillivray, Oscoda; Postmaster Sandy McKay, West Branch; Game Warden Reuben S. Babbitt, Marius; Hanson and M. A. Bates of Grayling. There were some splendid talks and many ideas were suggested that may be useful in the conservation of wild game and fish and our forests. At the conclusion of the several addresses Pres. Hanson announced that it was the intention of the local association to hold the largest sportsmen gathering ever pulled off in Michigan here next summer. This would be staged at Lake Margrethe, and among the events of the occasion would be a really good barbecue. Invitations would be extended to sportsmen associations of all northern Michigan.

At this stage the meeting was handed over to James MacGillivray who presented several reels of rare pictures, showing many scenes of wild animals and birds taken in their natural surroundings. Views of scenes taken at Isle Royale last summer were especially interesting. This wonderful island will no doubt sometime be taken over by the U. S. government and declared as a national park. It is located near the north shore of Lake Superior.

Not the least interest at the event were the exhibits that were placed about the room by the decorating committee—Al Cramer and Geo. Burke. There were many kinds of stuff—Michigan wild animals, birds and fish, including practically every species of trout. About the room hung many hunting and fishing pictures. A collection of antique firearms was displayed upon one of the billiard tables while on the other table were some of the finest shot guns and rifles to be had anywhere. In another place, stacked in musket-fashion, was a collection of high class fishing rods.

The whole event was a decided success and for many hours after the official program was over, groups sat about the club rooms here and there telling about some of their hunting and fishing experiences, subjects that are always dear to the heart of any nimrod or piscatorialist.

THE SCHOOL TATTLER

GRAYLING HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Marcella Sullivan—Editor, Emma Hum—Ass't Editor.

The basketball season will be brought to a close next Friday night, when our teams will collide with the Roscommon teams on the local floor. Every one come out and see the final victory.

Boys Lose At Alba.
The boys' team played in hard luck last week Friday night, when they were defeated by the Alba quintet, 35-13. Our team defeated Alba earlier in the season, but owing to the small floor our boys were put to a decided disadvantage.

Bobbies Played Boys.
The Bobbies played the boys team in a preliminary last Saturday night. They displayed fine playing and at the beginning it looked as though the boys were in for a beating. After the first half, however, the boys changed their line up, putting in all their largest players. The Bobbies took this game as a joke, but it seems their opponents were in dead earnest.

School News.
The last number of the Lyceum course was given last Friday by the Senior class. Alton Packard, the cartoonist and humorist delighted a large audience.

Miss Sevier is in quarantine for Scarlet Fever, Miss Shankel, Miss Hainline, and Miss Fitzgerald are in quarantine for a week. Some of the Senior girls were given experience in teaching last Friday. "How did you like it girls?" Mr. Smith was absent last week attending a meeting at Chicago.

Jokes.
What would this High School be like if:
The Seniors would agree?
Pinky really got a mustache?
The Juniors had more pep?
The Sophomores would agree.
With anyone else?

Miss Harrington got cross?
The boys could win a B. B. game?
Bath-Harrington heeled-out loud?
Everyone got their lesson?
No one checked gum?
All the sewing machines worked?
Noland Houghton didn't blush?
There were no fake excuses?
Everyone attended class meetings?
The girls glee club could really sing?

Florence Cowan to librarian: "I want the life of Caesar."
Librarian: "Sorry, but Brutus is ahead of you."
Arlene McGowan: "I see you are studying 'Romeo and Juliet,' do you like it?"

Edgar McPhee: "No it gets sorta dead toward the end."
Mr. Smith: "What makes this type of story so rusty, Miss Thomas?"
Miss Thomas: "That's the one our lady editors write their stuff on."
"Don't you think Grayling girls are prettier than Gaylord girls?"
"I don't know, I'm no judge of painting."

Miss Fox: "Alice, what did I tell you I would do if I caught you whispering again?"
Alice W: "If you don't remember it, Miss Fox, you needn't think I am going to tell you."

FEDERATION PRES. VISITS GRAYLING

MRS. RUSSELL GUEST OF LOCAL WOMAN'S CLUBS.

Mrs. Dorian Russell, of Grand Rapids, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs of Michigan, was a guest of the Good Fellowship club and the Woman's club of this city last Monday afternoon and evening in response to an invitation extended by the local clubs.

Mrs. Russell arrived on the afternoon train from the south and was met by the officers of the local clubs and together they enjoyed a luncheon at Shoppagan Inn. At 5:30 in the evening a banquet was served at the inn and attended by the members of the two clubs. The evening was spent at the beautiful home of Dr. and Mrs. Keyport and an address by the State president listened to. The ladies were delighted with Mrs. Russell and all speak with enthusiasm of her address on "Club Women and Other Folks," a brief outline of which is as follows:

The development of the individual to an understanding of his responsibility in life is a great need of the hour. We seem to be more concerned with the trivial than we are with the elimination of those causes which underlie the wrong standards of living.

Emphasis was placed on the rapid growth of the club movement since 1895, and the constantly widening tendency for federation toward national competition among club women.

The desire to raise the general standards of living was pointed out as a reason why club groups should not become exclusive, and enlarging the circle of influence to include as many women in the community as possible was suggested, because of the necessity that all women be informed as to the responsibility of motherhood, the right of the child to be well-born, the value of good social customs, the value of good movies and the danger in poor movies.

Friendly cooperation with other groups was given as a necessity if the best interests of the community are to be served.

It is difficult to visualize a world in which the home will not be the predominating influence, and the present-day educational trend toward home working through Domestic Science, Little Mothers Leagues, etc., is vital to the future.

To know existing laws and to insist upon their enforcement is more important than attempting new laws. Lack of enforcement of the law is amendment is a blot upon the history of this decade.

The National Illegality Conference held in Washington recently and attended by the president of the Michigan State Federation, was quite fully discussed, because Michigan illegality is on the increase. As against 90,000 illegals in our state in 1910, we now have 87,000 while the United States has 5,600,000 illegals. At this conference measures were introduced for a nation-wide campaign against illegality.

The study of municipal government was suggested as a means of understanding the problems by which our public officials are faced. Taxation is the method by which we enjoy the many comforts of life and to study this subject may be a valuable contribution to the life of the community because insight may lead to less criticism and more constructive activity on part of the taxpayer.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS.

Losses arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or "other casualty" for example, a flood or frost—whether or not connected with the taxpayer's business, may be deducted from gross income in his 1923 income tax return. If his home or automobile is destroyed by fire, the loss is deductible for the year in which it occurred.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction and need not be incurred in trade or business. A loss for embezzlement is also deductible.

All losses are deductible only to the extent by which they are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

PEOPLE CARELESS OF SCARLET FEVER

NEW CASES INCREASING RAPIDLY WITHIN LAST FEW WEEKS.

There seems to be a lack of understanding among people with regard to how to prevent scarlet fever, and the law regarding it and the danger of it. All sore throats with a fever should be seen by a doctor.

Every case of rash or any sort should be seen by a doctor immediately and diagnosed.

Patients with scarlet fever are quarantined 28 days at least and kept away from all children for 7 days after release.

It is a common error to call the doctor to diagnose a case when they can always call the Public Health nurse and she will tell them if it is necessary to have the doctor. These precautions are not being observed and the disease is increasing in number and severity. Unless we obey the law some one is going to die and we are responsible for it.

There is no such thing as mild cases so far as giving it to some one else is concerned. All are alike contagious and a mild case in one person may develop a deadly one in the next.

Scarlet Fever (Scarlet Rash; Scarlatina).

1. Cases must be reported on the house.

2. Quarantine minimum: 28 days.

Head of the family may be fined, arrested and released. Children not in the household may be detained and isolated elsewhere for 28 days and then allowed to go to school. Patient shall not enter school and other public assemblies until 7 days after the quarantine has been raised.

Penalties. The 1919 law imposes a fine of two hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or both, for failure to observe the law in the discharge of duty of any person violating any rule or order of the State Health Commissioner. This includes physicians or householders who fail to make report to the health officer, also health officer who fail to report to the Michigan Department of Health (Sec. 12, Act 146, P. A. 1919).

The following families are under quarantine, with scarlet fever at the present time, and the number indicates the number ill in the family:

PETER NELSON DIES SUDDENLY

CAME TO CRAWFORD COUNTY IN 1883. HAD LIVED HERE SINCE THAT TIME.

Peter Nelson, a well known resident of Crawford county since 1883, passed away suddenly last Friday afternoon at about 2:00 o'clock. The cause of death was pronounced by the attending physician as acute dilatation of the heart. Mr. Nelson operated a farm near the Danish landing at Lake Margrethe and came to Grayling every three or four days for provisions, and Friday after he had finished his trading he went to his home in town and after eating his dinner left on his return to his farm. On his way he stopped at Mr. Witkowski's, of whom he was going to purchase a cow and as he entered the Witkowski home he said he felt ill. He was helped into the house where he asked permission to lie down for a few minutes until he felt better. Immediately after lying down he fell from the bed to the floor dead. When the news was passed about that Mr. Nelson was dead it was hard to believe as just a short time before he had been seen on the streets.

Mr. Nelson was born in Lange, Denmark, October 23, 1853. He spent his boyhood in his native land and when he grew to manhood he like many others, heard of the advances of the Great America and so in 1879 he came to this country, locating at Union Grove, Wisconsin. Before coming to America he met and wed Miss Laurine Larson, who accompanied him. They resided in Union Grove until 1883 when they came to Crawford County, locating near the outlet of Portage Lake, moving to Grayling in 1889, where they have since resided.

The funeral of the deceased was held Monday afternoon with services at the family home at 2:00, conducted by Rev. K. J. J. of the Danish Lutheran church. Several hymns were rendered during the service, and the following acted as pall-bearers: Hans Petersen, Julius Nielsen, James Jorgensen, Nels L. Nelson, Fred Hanson and Lars Peterson.

Funeral was attended by many of the old and close friends of the family. The casket was laden with beautiful floral pieces, which showed the high esteem in which the Nelson family is held.

Besides his wife the deceased is survived by two sons and four daughters. Walter C. of Gaylord, Hans R. of this city, Mrs. Emma Fredericksen of Hayward, Calif., Mrs. Clara C. White and Miss Mabel L. Nelson of Lansing, and Mrs. Minnie C. Roberts of Grayling.

All the above were in attendance at the funeral excepting Mrs. Fredrickson who was unable to get here. Charles White of Lansing, Mrs. Walter C. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nelson of Gaylord also came to attend the funeral.

FREDERIC CARDINALS DEFEATS FAST TEAM PICKED FROM TOWN NORTH.

The so-called Indian River quintet lost out to the Cardinals at Frederic last Saturday night in a very fast and furious game of basketball. The visiting team was comprised of Homer Lindholm of Gaylord, Rae of Vandenberg and King and Lynch of Indian River and Kelly from Cheboygan Texas. King and Lindholm starred for the visitors.

The Cardinals played very fast in the first half but did not get their team work in action until the last half. Burke, Callahan and Tokin played best and gave a great exhibition of their ability. Thomson was on guard as usual and held the opponents to a very few baskets. Fredrickson was unable to get here. Charles White of Lansing, Barber playing his position also gave a good exhibition in guarding his heavier opponent.

The game was close and was anybody's from the toss-up of the ball the first period ending in Indian River's favor 9-4; at half time it was 13-10 in their favor.

After the half time period the Cardinals rallied and came into form this period ending in a tie 20-20. Then keeping up their stride the Cardinals made three field baskets in succession. After that the game was never in doubt, ending 29 to 25 in the Cardinals favor.

THE SUNRISE CLUB TO PLANT PINE TREES.

The Sunrise Club whose members are A. E. Michelson, President, Esbern Hanson, Vice President, C. P. Michelson, Secretary and Treas. J. W. Hartwick, F. L. Michelson and O. W. Hanson, say that one of the main objects of the club is to aid and assist in the propagation and conservation of game fish, game animals, and game, insectivorous and song birds.

Their club house is located on the main stream of the Au Sable river a short distance below the junction of the Au Sable and the South Branch. It stands on a high hill, giving a splendid view up and down the river and a beautiful broad panoramic outlook of the surrounding country for miles in all directions. Scarcely a boat passes up or down the river without stopping to drink of an ice cold spring, which pours out of the side of the hill in front of the club house.

The members of this club are all enthusiastic sportsmen in the best sense of the word and are equally enthusiastic in the propagation and conservation of fish, game and forest life.

Last year they made a start on reforestation by setting out on their property, 3000 white pine and 3000 Norway spruces. These small trees were watched carefully during the summer, and the club found that the percentage of loss was less than ten per cent.

In addition to the pines, they set out a number of other trees, including a h. mulberry, silver birch, also apple, plum and cherry trees.

For this year's planting they have already ordered 4000 white pine, 1000 Norway, 100 black walnut, 100 mulberry and 1000 willow cuttings. Others will be ordered later.

The trees are to be delivered, May 10th, at which time the Club members will all be present for the opening of the fishing season, and to assist in the planting.

These pine trees are bought from the State Forestry nursery, located at Higgins Lake, at a cost of a few dollars a thousand. They are quickly and easily planted, although it must be correctly and carefully done.

Mr. Marcus Schaaf, State Forester at Lansing, was present at the first planting, assisting and advising as to the proper methods. He will be glad to advise others who may desire to purchase and plant pine trees.

This planting will continue yearly and it is earnest hope of the Sunrise Club that other clubs and individual owners along our streams and around our lakes will adopt a planting policy on their open lands.

The mountain ash, mulberry and other berry trees, to be planted will form a food supply for many kinds of birds. Bird houses and nesting places will also be installed.

Last summer the Club also were glad to receive the services of Mr. R. D. Bailey, Crawford county agricultural agent, who made a soil survey of his lands and recommendations with reference to soil treatment and crops to be put on certain lands, which they proposed to improve.

They heartily recommend his services to every one engaged in agricultural pursuits.

Let the good work go on.

NEW FISHING LAWS FOR ROSCOMMON CO.

New regulations from the taking of fish from the lakes or Roscommon county were recently issued by the Department of Conservation. Last week's issue of the Roscommon Herald-News, in reference, said as follows:

"Taking up the matter of casting and the use of artificial baits in fishing, the editor of the Herald-News has this week been informed by John Baird, director of conservation, that the order made no change in the use of artificial baits and that their use could be continued as provided in Section 2, Act 238 of the Public Acts of 1915, which in part reads as follows:

"Provided further, that a hook and line shall be constructed to be a single line, or single rod and line with hook or hooks attached while being used for still fishing, or single line, or single rod and line, with single hook or hooks or with a natural or artificial bait not to exceed four inches in length with one or more hooks or gangs of hooks attached to be used for casting or trolling for fish which shall be by means of the fish taking the bait or hook in the mouth."

Under the new order, which went into effect Jan. 1st, the Great Northern or grass pike in the lakes of Roscommon county come in for the first bit of protection ever given these fish in the state, and with their protection also comes a means of conservation of the other species of game fish for which our lakes are noted. This coming season the fishermen will not be allowed to take large or small mouth black bass, or wall-eye pike of less than twelve inches in length, and it will be unlawful to take more than eight Great Northern or grass pike, wall-eye pike, or large or small mouth black bass, combined in one day, or to have more than ten of these five species in possession at one time. The sale of these fish has also been prohibited and can only be transported as open hand baggage the same as applies to trout. Fishermen will also be limited to the use of one pole and one line at a time in fishing. In other years two poles or two lines have been allowed to the person. While the two pole or two line provision was in effect, Mr. Baird writes that it has often been reported to his office that they fishing to our lakes were using from six to twelve lines, but in the future this practice would be stopped. Mentioning the fact that the limiting of poles or lines to one was in our opinion a little drastic, Mr. Baird shot this at your sportsman: "I don't think you yourself want to have fifth bite a hook that is lying on the bottom of the lake, unattended while casting for fish in another direction." He got us hooked, we'll stop.

As another means of conserving the fish, the order also provides that it will be unlawful to "take" fish from the inland waters of the county with any kind of nets, spear or gaff. This means an end to the taking of tons of suckers and other fish from the streams tributary to our lakes during the early spring time.

Lansons' Buildings.
If all the houses and buildings in Lansing were played side by side in a long line, they would reach across the three great continents of Europe, Asia and America.

STATE OF MICHIGAN—County of Crawford, ss.
The Circuit Court for the County of Crawford, in Chancery.
In the matter of the petition of J. F. Furr, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes and interest thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan, praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against said party, and therein described for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes and interest on certain lands owned by said party, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

A conference on the Great Lakes St. Lawrence deep-waterway project will be held at Ironwood, has been announced by George E. Bishop, treasury manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau. Attending the conference will be John A. Doelle, secretary of the United States Tidewater Association, John Pardee, of Duluth, secretary of the Deep Waterway Commission, A. C. Carlton, secretary of the Michigan Deep Waterway Commission, and Leo C. Harmon, of Manistique, and Mr. Bishop, members of the Michigan commission.

Maintenance of trunk line highways during 1924 will be strictly under the direction of the state highway department, it has been decided by the state administrative boards. Counties must agree to rules made by the commissioner before they will receive funds from the state. In the cases of counties who refuse to accept the state department rules or to live up to agreements made, the state will take over maintenance and charge to the counties their proportion of the expense.

Fifty-seven creditors of the defunct Alpina County Farm Bureau to whom the bureau owed nearly $5,000, have lost out in the settlement of the claims, according to a letter received by Trustee Michael O'Brien from the Federal Court of Bay City. These creditors neglected to file their claims within the time set by the court, believing that it would be a waste of time as there were no visible assets with which to meet them.

Horses are holding their own with automobiles in the upper peninsula. There are almost 31,000 passenger cars and the horse census is 23,540, according to state department of agricultural figures. The number of milk cows is 71,800; with 42,000 other cattle. Menominee county leads cloverland in milk cows, having 15,750. The sheep census is 19,300 and the swine 17,200.

The 100th-anniversary of the founding of Ann Arbor was celebrated recently at a banquet given in the Michigan Union. Nearly 600 people attended and the descendants of the early settlers of the village were given places of honor. THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1924.

WASHINGTON is now in a condition bordering upon hysteria which surpasses the tense excitement evident during the war period. Rumors which are so absurd that they would not command a moment's attention in ordinary times are eagerly repeated, and the acts of every public man are being scrutinized with microscopic care in an endeavor to involve him in questionable relations with the oil industry, or with those who have figured so prominently in the recent investigation.

Men who have well established reputations for coolness and sagacity have seemingly caught this fever of suspicion, and are joining in the chorus of condemnation. It is no exaggeration to say that the coolest man in Washington is the President. He has refused to be stamped into a hasty action, and is measuring all facts as they are brought out with the same calmness which has marked him since he took office in August. He has, despite the petty bickerings of ambitious politicians, plowed a straight furrow in the field of the Nation's affairs.

Calvin Coolidge has pursued the honest, upright course, knowing that the people of the country are back of him and they are back of him because they know he is honest. Despite tremendous pressure brought to bear, he has courageously stated that any one, no matter what his political faith may be, if after a fair trial is found guilty, will be punished to the fullest extent of the law. The President stands untried, a champion of the people. He stands for that which is clean and honest; that which is for the best interests of the entire country and he knows that the people are back of him.

The President will not protect any one, friend or foe, if they have been guilty of betraying the confidences of the people. Even the Democrats who are fighting him openly or under cover, when talked with, unofficially, express their high regard for his honesty and acknowledge that his main purpose is to serve the people of the United States faithfully and well.

A MADE-IN-GRAYLING BOOTH.

A "Made-in-Grayling" booth at the Michigan Industrial exposition at Detroit, May 3rd to 17th. Why not? Here will be shown a display of manufactured articles of every description that are turned out in Michigan. Indications are that this is to be one of the finest exhibits ever offered in any state in the country.

Grayling should be represented. The local manufacturers could group thus the best of their products and would be small. Nowhere in the world is there a finer grade of flooring manufactured than is made in Grayling. Our lumber mills could put up a fine display also the Box factory could exhibit samples of their output. The Grayling Dowel & Tie Plug company could put up a very interesting exhibit. And the du Pont plant could offer an array of products that would be very attractive. And perhaps there are others who could contribute to a "Made-in-Grayling" booth at this coming exhibition. Grayling is the best little city in the north and should be represented at the exposition.

NEED OF LEADERSHIP.

The party politicians have pretty thoroughly stripped the voter of his independence and his courage. Glen Frank has conceived the ideal President and describes him in "The Man Who Should be President" in the January Century. He says: "The next President should be a man of courage. Should be intellectually and morally enough above the battle of politics to enable him to think and to act with the requisite realism and courage. 'The service such a President could render would help us break the paralysis that has fallen upon American politics. He would help us reinvent the political process with reality. There is nothing more certain than that representative government is doomed unless we do away with the anonymous blackmail which our democracy practices on its political leadership, with the result that courage gives way to cowardice and the statesman turns politician.'"

BAY CITY 'Y' IS LOSER TO GRAYLING

INDEPENDENTS TRIM VISITORS 24 TO 14, SATURDAY.

The Grayling Independent basketball team easily defeated the Bay City Y. M. C. A. team 24 to 14. Saturday night, the local team gaining an early lead which they held throughout the course of the game. The Grayling five started off with a rush and at the half time led 13 to 8. At the start of the second half the visiting five spurted and came within one point of tying the local quintet. At this juncture the Grayling team rallied and registered five field baskets in rapid succession to place the game out of reach of the Bay City five. Crane led the locals in the attack with five goals and was ably assisted by Reynolds and Johnson, each of whom scored three field baskets.

Lineup and summary:

Malnutrition.

By Dr. Wm. DeKleine.

Malnutrition is a word that is very much misused and its meaning misunderstood. Many people associate this word with underfeeding, meaning thereby that a malnourished child is an underfed child. They assume that if a child is suffering from malnutrition, that then he must be underfed and consequently below the average weight for children of the same age and height. That unfortunately is often true with a large number of children; but that fact in itself does not determine the cause and results of malnutrition. A child may be well fed and yet be malnourished; or he may even be overweight and yet show evidence of malnutrition.

I am not quibbling over the correct usage of this word. That in itself can do little good. But so frequently parents who have been informed that their children are suffering from malnutrition, assume that we mean they are underfed. Often mothers from cultured homes are offended because we dare to assume that their children are underfed. They do not understand the medical usage of the word, and consequently they do not use the information they receive to the full advantage of their children.

The medical usage of malnutrition implies that something in the physiology of the child is interfering with the proper nourishment of the body. Improper nourishment is most commonly hands expression in loss of weight or failure to gain, but not always. It may cause improper body. The blood may be anemic in functioning of the vital organs of the character; infections may result and a hundred and one other things occur. The results of malnutrition may even be the production of overweight. Malnutrition indicates a destructive process of some kind that should be terminated before it does permanent damage.

The causes of malnutrition may be lack of sufficient food or proper kind of food, or it may be something else. It may be infected tonsils, diseased appendages in some part of the body. It may be insufficient sleep and rest; improper hygiene as to clothing and cleanliness; improper habits as to eating and improper regulation of daily physical habits; or more likely a combination of causes.

The causes of malnutrition in children are legion. They are not always in food. Neither are the results of these causes always expressed in underweight. They may manifest themselves in overweight. Overweight children are malnourished. Overgrowth is just as much an expression of lack of balance in metabolism as underweight.

The point is that a child who shows evidence of malnutrition needs a careful physical examination by a physician and a dentist. The cause must be found and removed or the future of the child is not properly safeguarded.

An item in our last issue stating our belief that the snow would soon be gone, caused one of our farmer friends to remind us that if we would take a trip out into the country we would have a different opinion. Guess they are right for even on the outskirts of town are huge drifts of snow, banked as high as some of the houses. Yes, it looks as the sleighing would last several weeks yet outside the village where the traffic is slight and where the buildings are too far between to help to reflect the sun's rays. Just now the snow is going fast in town, and as it melts it reveals many unattractive aspects dirt everywhere.

A Tale of the Flatwoods

"An' did y'u think I take the ol' man by surprise? Did y'u, lad?"
He opened his mouth in another upheaval of silent merriment, his still snowy shoulders heaving up and down and jostling his iron-gray locks about his ears.
"Jist brace y'rself fr the rush, warden y'u?"
"I—thought y'u was blind the log."
The old ranger's eyes danced and his mouth spread wide.
"I was."

"Yes—but how?—w-y I had m' eyes on that log every second?"
"Eggarly—the sneaky shoulders heaved up and down again—'calc'lated y'u could. 'Stid o' keepin' y'r eye on the log, y'u ort 'a kept it on the pass to the highest cover—ol' In-jin-trick—show y'u some time."
The young man glanced at the log, noted the space of, practically open ground that must have been crossed in order to reach the nearest cover, and turned to his aged companion in frank admiration.

"An' did y'u think I take the ol' man by surprise? Did y'u, lad?"

"Wonder if I ever will be as handy as you?"

"'Taint likely—y'r life don't depend on it, like mine used to sixty years ago. Y're far handier already than any other man in the woods. But woodcraft will never ag'in be what it once was. People even kinda took down on it, now days. They're wrapped up in book 'tamin' an' 'tamin' an' money grubbin' that they think it's a kind of disgrace some of 'em—'t even 'tamin' t' shoot. No no, woodcraft will never ag'in be what it once was—never ag'in."

A faint suspicion of bitterness, of homesickness for scenes long gone—for the stimulating uncertainties of the perilous trail—quivered in the old man's tones. He stooped, plucked off a tender shoot from a sumac frond and wood-chewing it meditatively.

"How come y'u left y'r trail s' open this mornin'?" asked Jack. "I picked it up where y'u jumped the road."
"The question seemed to recall the old man's straying thoughts.
"Yes, an' y'u ort 'a picked it up long before. Y'u crossed it twice before ever y'u come down the bluffs—once at a hundred yards west of the pheasant's nest, an' ag'in a leetle north of whar y'u stood lookin' down at Hen Squire's o' cabin. Y'u didn't hardly act like y'u're s' this mornin'—y'u acted kinda keeled an' fur away, like—so, I left the trail open a leetle that—thar y'at the creek."

The young man turned away and stood gazing out across the brush-tangled hollow.
"And me thinkin' I take by surprise the famous ranger that found the trail of the great Tecumseh, when it was hid from the best of the runners," he said, warmly—"and you was jist playin' with me."

At reference to the far-famed achievement of his younger days, the shoulders of the old hunter seemed to grow a little more erect, while his dark eyes glowed with a faint suggestion of the fire that in his prime had made them the hardest pair of eyes on the border to pass unseen.

"Well, not jist playin', nuther." He chewed hard on the sumac sprout a moment. "You must 'a put a nigh run into that gal a rattle bit ago."
A statement with the force of a question—the young man started, but hid the movement by fumbling with his sore shoulder. The terrified face of the mountain girl freshened in his mind, with the dread of discovery in her startled eyes. He hitched the blouse loose from his shoulder and glanced out across the hollow without meeting his old friend's look.

"What gal?"
The old man jerked a hand toward the opposite bluff.
"Aw, I jist glimpsed one a-penkin' along through the brush yonder an' 'lowed mebbe y'u might 'a run across 'er."

He stood chewing the sumac frond and looking away down the hollow in the direction of Black Rock. The young man breathed easier—the girl's secret was safe. The hawklike eyes had missed the chance meeting—seemingly the one thing they had missed, as his next words half startlingly disclosed.

"What did y'u make o' them tracks y'u follered yestern—com them bushes on the edge of the cliff back o' y'r cabin an' past the ol' log? I see y'u'd be'n follerin' 'em an' I crossed the trail m'ose' this mornin'."

look upon his aged friend, lost in wonder at his marvelous woodcraft.
"I got a look at the man that made 'em," was his slow answer, "while he laid—behind that log—a watchin' me straighten up the fence. I don't think he knows I saw 'im, but I did—it was the feller that stirred up all that rumpus at the schoolhouse night b'fore last."

The old man threw away his sumac frond; an eager seriousness crossed his face.
"That was Black Bogus."
The younger man stared.
"No!"
"Hit were."

The woodsman fell suddenly thoughtful; glanced away across the hollow toward where the double trail led through the woods. The old man studied him curiously. It may be enough, was thinking the same thought—that strange resemblance that had so puzzled them both—but neither let fall any inkling of it to the other.

"Al knows 'im," Uncle Nick went on after a moment. "He's a friend of Loge Belden's—an' he thinks mebbe he's habbin' up thar with 'im."
He jerked his thumb up the hollow toward where a section of the warped roof of Loge Belden's squalid cabin barely protruded above the bushes; seemed to weigh his next words before letting them fall.

"Anyhow, I thought I'd put m' nose up the creek an' kinda throw an eye on Loge's cabin 'a see if 'e is."

"An' if 'e is—?" the other questioned, having caught the curious look. The caution of a lifetime in the woods prompted the old hunter to look guardedly in every direction before answering.

"Don't let on y'u know it"—he called a deep center—but Al says Belden blongs t' the same gang o' cutthroats down there—was that Black Bogus does, an' he thinks more in likely they're jist in t' crack ol' Sine Col's safe."

The hardness that had come at this mountain girl's warning crept again into the woodsman's eyes, but he made no comment.
"I how y'u neg't I be told they jist wanted one gal more time, y'u can't see that happened at the post office, an' at the schoolhouse?"

They're the kind that won't stay flocked an' the kind that strikes in the dark."
Jack picked up the heavy shotgun from where he had laid it aside when about to rush upon his old friend, thoughtfully blew a dead grass blade out from between the hammer and the lock, but offered no word. The old man again bent his furtive look upon him and went on.

"Black Bogus—they's fifty sheffs a-lookin' fr 'im, an' a standin' reward of five thousand dollars, dead 'a alive."

The young man flinched, looked keenly at the other.
"Uncle Nick—y'u wouldn't—?"
"No, I wouldn't," the old man replied with instant readiness to the unimpaired imperturbability. "I've shot him in my time. I never sold one."

He stepped around the great sumac stump, motioned for the other to follow, and stole away along the brow of the bluff, quite obviously in serious earnest.

The young woodsman fell into the trail, stepped in the caution that came from much living alone, he said nothing, but it was the one thing that had brought him to the woods that morning—to have a look at Loge Belden's cabin.

Reaching a point, at length, a short distance below where the suspected cabin squatted, they crept down the bed of a dry wash-out and through some thickets of briar and hazel until they lay within less than a hundred yards of its crude and mud daubed walls.

There seemed to be no one about except the comely mountain girl, who came to the open door a time or two to look out, as if she expected some one—some one that she would rather not see, to judge by the troubled expression of her face—a face whose tragic sadness had so impressed the woodsman at that strained and hurried interview.

It was late in the forenoon when, above them on the hillside they heard the swish of a brush swinging back into place after having been dragged aside. Uncle Nick held up a cautious finger, and they crouched lower in the cover.

There came the snap of a dry stick, a man emerged from the swaying bushes and stole toward the back door of the cabin, passing within a dozen steps of where they lay. There could be no mistaking the powerful form and truculent face with its stubble of beard—it was Black Bogus.

light when his peering eyes were not poring over a book, with another usually tucked under his arm.
Jack Warhope had not yet climbed the bluff to the woods on the morning of that eventful day that stared forth the startled face of the mountain girl with her hurried warning; its dawn still clung to cliff and scar, and many candles were still alight in the village, when the preacher left the parlor, bedroom and came out on the porch.

Texte was already on the lawn, sitting about among the flowers and gathering a bouquet for the breakfast table.

She was like them—the flowers—as much a part of the rich life of the lawn as they. Life—life radiated from every curve of her pliant body; it was the one thought that came first to mind when looking on her. There were butterflies in the yellow glow already arched above the rim of the gaze and sitting in through the cool breeze with dew, but she was more alive than they.

At sight of her, captivated by a lilac bush and reaching up for one of its choicest blossoms, the studious concentration left the face of the man on the porch and there came over his features a curious sadness—a sadness touched with fire, as if within him had suddenly flared up some desperate battle of the soul.

The girl had heard the step on the porch. With the coveted blossom in her hand at last, she placed it with the others, and turned with a smile of sensible frankness.

The precise and studious concentration instantly returned to the eyes behind the spectacles, the stoop came back to the capable shoulders, and with the quick, nipping step that was as much a part of him as the track coat and buck stock, he came down off the porch and joined her.

With the stately and somewhat pompous carriage of seventy years ago, he had taken the sheeps, heading to be allowed to cut the flowers when the slant of a sure drew their eyes to the back of the yard. The old banker was just coming from the barn, his step leaving the rumpled trail in the gray dew of the lawn, his rugged face apparently full of its accustomed strength and color.

"Way, higher, I expected you'd stay in bed a while this mornin' yet, after that fever, didn't the other night?"
"Bed? No place fr a well man after daylight," he pulled himself up to the last inch of his gaunt height, stretched up his arms, filled his chest with the dew-washed air, expelled it with an explosive exclamation that sent a couple of blackbirds in the branches above, and the cranes and battlements of his stern old face squinted themselves out into an expression as near as they could come to a smile. "An' I am a well man—fit as a fiddle."

"But, father, you don't think of goin' to the office today?"
"Aw, I reckon y'u'd put m' up if I did."

"I'm so glad—and won't it be nice to have y'u at home all day ag'in? I wish y'u never would go back t' that horrid office ag'in."

The old man put his arm around her and patted her shoulder.
"You're a good girl, Texte. I dunno what y'u'd father would do without y'u, now that—that."

He stopped, let his eyes stray up the river and far into the east, all flushed and squinted with the close coming of the sun; the girl bent her head; the preacher stood fumbling the shawl in his hand.

"Mebbe I will quit the office one o' these days."
His eyes were still lost in the east; he spoke as if his heart was there. The daughter raised her head and searched his face.

"You alw'ys say that, but y'u never do."
"I dunno, better walk out than be carried out, they say, an' I've come almighty nigh that very thing a time or two—heep nigher"—he brought his eyes back out of the east, noticed the hurt on his daughter's face and patted her shoulder.

CHAPTER XII
Ashes of the Past.
It was little enough that the red-roofed cottage saw of the young preacher—breakfast by candle light, supper the same; an hour of twilight with Texte at the rustic seat at Whispering Spring. The rest of the day he spent in the study, at the parsonage, where, at the insistence of the venerable widow, he lunched. He proved to be a very studious man. It was a rare thing indeed to see him in day.

MILLIONS OF BOOKS ARE PRINTED
On an Average of 200,000 Volumes Are Published Each Year Throughout the World.
Have you ever wondered how many books there are in existence? On the average 200,000 volumes are published each year throughout the world, and as 8,500,000 appeared last century, one can obtain a fairly good idea of the size of the world's bookshop.
Adding together the number of volumes published in each country since printing was invented, the astonishing total of 80,000,000 is reached. The amount of energy, time, paper and printers' ink which have gone to produce all these books is absolutely incalculable.
The three largest libraries in the world are the British Museum Library in London, which has 4,000,000 volumes; the Bibliothéque Nationale in Paris, which has 8,000,000, and the Library of Congress in Washington, with half a million less. Thus, between them alone, these three great institutions, possess 9,500,000 books of all kinds.
It matters little what planet a man is born under, so long as he is able to keep on the earth.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

R. D. BAILEY
County Agricultural Agent

LIVESTOCK LEGUMES LIMESTONE MEAN PROFITS IN FARMING

Money-making idea number 18: Send for half a dozen seed catalogues, and half a dozen catalogues of strawberries, bush fruits and fruit trees.

Plan to set out a few well-chosen fruit trees.

Plan for a Large, Good Garden.

In the country this should be one acre, about twice as long as wide, to be worked largely with a horse and cultivator, and finished off with a hoe.

Don't stick any fruit trees into your garden on the farm.

In town or country garden have bright flowers here and there, with lots of hollyhocks along the sides.

Use this money-making idea now.

Written for "The Fruit Belt" by Kenneth C. Clapp.

"Praise be for labor of their hard-earned hands."

"Thank God for products of the plodding plow!"

To those who came and conquered laggard lands—The lands that feed a hungry nation now—

Use offered small and tardy gratitude.

"We cannot pay the toll of tedious toil."

"We shudder at, and shun, their task as crude—"

"The sacrifice of those who sow the soil."

"Unheralded, rewardless in their fight."

Unsung the peasant of a proper praise—

Be they the heroes who, regardless dare the blight.

Of hardship through the thankless trails they blaze!"

Westgate Farm-Rejoices.

The long-expected event has happened. Westgate Farm, the Maple Forest home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Babbitt, rejoices in the arrival of a purebred-Holstein heifer calf.

To some, this may not mean much; but, in the fortunes of Westgate Farm, it means a great deal.

It means reward for faith and patience. It means the triumph of an ideal. It means the beginning of better days. It means the possession of something choice, unusual for the parents, and of a new interest to bind the growing children to the farm home. It means a long step for children and parents, away from the cheap, sordid, common place with which our farm folks are too often satisfied.

Mr. and Mrs. Babbitt are to be congratulated on their courage in putting one hundred dollars into a young heifer, and on their faith that it would be a good investment.

We predict that, in five years, Westgate herd will be something so attractive that others will wish that they, too, had the courage to venture.

The County Agent feels considerable pride in all this, too. He had a little part in Mr. and Mrs. Wm. G. Feldhauser buying the sire of this newly arrived heifer off the "Dairy Train" that some may remember we arranged to stop here in 1921.

We had a part in inducing Herman Wendt to ship in the mother (then a calf) from southeastern New York State, in the fall of 1922. We had a part in inducing Mr. Babbitt to buy this mother when Herman Wendt moved away.

This quiet improvement of stock is going on all the time somewhere in Crawford County.

It often takes months to set the stage just right to bring about the purchase of another purebred; but, it is going on all the time; for the future prosperity of this county lies in dairying.

Prosperity Follows the Dairy Cow.

This successful future will be brought about by the farmers now here, or others, each keeping more dairy cows better stabled and better fed than is the rule here now.

"House Mit 'Em."

I am satisfied that one-third, the cows in the county do not pay their way.

A cow that does not pay, eats up the profit made by one that does pay; so if a man has a cow that does not pay, and two that do, he makes profit on only one; for the poor one eats up the profit made by one of the good ones.

Better sell that poor one to the butcher, and put the money you get for her into the Milk Maker dairy feed and make the other two produce heavily.

This milk-maker dairy feed is composed of twelve ingredients, and is the most cleverly balanced dairy ration I ever saw. Other County Agents tell me the same.

Cooperative Association at Grayling is selling on its second crop of it. Must be some good.

This is the third year the State Farm Bureau has sold it. The sales increase each year.

For this winter's sales the State Farm Bureau contracted to have nearly a million dollars worth of it made up. Must be some good.

George Goes At It Right.

George Annis is going at it right. He sees the truth in the statement that the grain ration fed should be in proportion to the weight of the cow, the richness of her milk, and the weight of milk she produces daily.

else to some you do not feed enough to make them do their best, while to others you give a little more expensive feed than they really need.

So what does George do, aided and abetted by his able wife and hustling sons, but go and buy some milk scales—regular milk scales.

And that is not all. He sent for some regular milk charts, too, on which you set down the weight of each cow's milk, morning and night.

So, if Old Ruby gives twelve pounds of milk this morning, that makes her due to get three pounds of milk-maker—one pound to four pounds of milk—that's the feeding rule, unless the milk is very rich.

Old Ruby Humps Herself.

Then, while Old Ruby is lapping up the succulent, fragrant, efficacious and fugacious milk-maker, with exceeding great gusto and relish. I'll bet she says: "Pretty soft, eh! All this warm barn, good hay, silage and milk-maker, just for giving a little milk. Pretty soft, I say. Wonder if he'd give more milk-maker if I'd give more milk. I like that stuff."

So she increases the milk a little; and George, being an honorable man, has to give more milk-maker, and the battle is on—more milk-maker, more milk—more milk, more milk-maker.

George, being a gentleman, is not going to be out done by a cow. So he heaps on the milk-maker. The cow, being a lady, is grateful for generosity, and gives more milk. Homer, Forrest and Earl carry the milk away and it's some job, too, while the cream separator hums busily and merrily and Mrs. Annis, at her end of the line, has all she can do to keep her head above the rising tide of cream.

All feel pretty well satisfied, however, at the end of the week, when there are sixty pounds of golden-butter to sell in town.

Better than a knock on the head, I'll say. A pair of milk scales ought to hang in every barn in the county; and, by the side of the scales, a milk chart.

Mrs. Chas. Craven and daughter Lola spent the week end in Bay City the guests of Mrs. E. Nickols.

Mrs. Hart has been quite ill for the past week but is somewhat improved at this writing.

The young people's Sunday school class met at the home of Mrs. Ed. Welch Wednesday evening.

The regular meeting of the Alpha Theta club was held Thursday evening Feb. 21st at the home of Mrs. Callahan. The business meeting was followed by an unusually interesting program.

Dr. Pool of Grayling was a professional caller in Frederic Monday.

M. E. Tobin returned home Friday after two weeks spent in Bay City and Detroit on business.

The Cheboygan Texans and the Frederic Cardinals played a snappy game of basketball the Cardinals winning by a score of 25 and 7.

TWICE PROVEN

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Grayling evidence—doubtfully proven.

Niels H. Nielsen, carpenter, Park St., says: "I was troubled off and on with my back and kidneys. My back ached day in and day out and was so stiff, I could hardly bend one way or the other. The kidney secretions too frequent in action. I took a few boxes of Doan's Pills from Lewis' Drug Store and they cured me of the complaint." (Statement given October 11, 1916.)

On April 28, 1920, Mr. Nielsen said: "Doan's cured me of kidney trouble and I haven't been bothered since in any way."

Don't Pay $1,000 or More

for a car, without knowing what the leader offers in the fine-car field

WE made a canvass of many who bought rivals of Studebakers. We said, "Tell us why you liked your car the better." The majority said, "We did not even look at the Studebaker." Most of them bought new models of the car they owned before.

Yet Studebaker is a leader in the fine-car field today. Studebaker builds more quality cars than any other plant in the world.

Studebaker is the sensation of modern Motordom. Its amazing growth signifies a new situation in this field.

Last year, 145,167 fine-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

Nearly three times as many as in 1920.

Is it fair to yourself—or fair to us—not to learn the reasons for this trend?

Facts to consider

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000—all staked on satisfying, better than others, buyers of high-grade cars.

Over 23,000 men have their future at stake in giving you maximum values.

$50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment, of which $32,000,000 has been added during the past five years.

$10,000,000 in body plants to give you superlative beauty. To give that final touch for which Studebakers have been famous for decades.

125 experts who devote their whole time to studying betterments. Who make 500,000 tests per year to maintain our supremacy.

Consider Studebaker history. For 72 years this concern has stood for high principles and policies.

For two generations, against all the world, it held first place in horse-drawn vehicles.

Now for years its name and fame have been committed to like attainments in fine motor cars.

If you only knew

There is no room here for details and comparisons. You will find them all in Studebaker showrooms. But let us cite some significant facts.

That lack of vibration, so conspicuous in Studebakers, costs us $600,000 yearly in extra machining of crank shafts.

That matchless strength in vital parts comes from the costliest steels. For some we add 15% to the quoted price to get exactness in them.

That Chase Mohr, used in our closed cars, is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. Cotton or ordinary wool, or a combination of both, could reduce our price $100 to $150 per car, but it would sacrifice Studebaker quality.

Note the bumpers, the steel trunk, the extra cord tires, the motorometer, the courtesy light on some models. Figure what they would cost as extras.

The infinite care

We use 35 formulas for steel, each worked out to exactness for supreme service in its place.

We employ 1,200 inspectors to make 30,000 inspections of the material and workmanship in each Studebaker car—before it leaves the factory.

Consider how Studebaker has always led in the building of high-grade cars. We were first to use cord tires as standard equipment. We were the first quantity manufacturers to build bodies of the highest grade.

If you want beauty, fine upholstery, rich finish and equipment, consider that Studebaker has had more experience in fine coach building than any other motor-car maker.

Our place no accident

The pedestal place which Studebaker holds in the fine-car field is not the result of accident. It comes from principles as old as this business—the ceaseless and determined ambition to excel.

Learn the result of these efforts. Compare detail by detail, part by part, with any car you wish. When you foot the advantages, you will find that they number scores.

These are facts you should know. They are inducing 150,000 per year to choose Studebaker cars.

Some sell at $1,045. Some meet with every requirement in size and power, and luxury. But the chassis are all alike, save in size. The same steels, the same standards throughout. Every important Studebaker part represents the best we know.

People have learned these facts—hundreds of thousands of them. The demand for Studebakers has almost tripled in three years. It has become overwhelming, even for our facilities.

Investigate the reasons. You will find them by the scores. Then, if you choose a rival car, we shall have nothing more to say.

See the Studebakers

Studebaker builds more fine cars than any other plant in the world.

Last year 145,167 wise motor-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebakers.

The demand has almost tripled in the past three years. Studebaker now holds a leading place in the high-grade field.

Our modern plants and their equipment cost $50,000,000. All to give you the maximum value at the minimum of cost.

It is folly to buy a car in this class without knowing what we give.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY FOR DR. THACHER'S SYRUP UNLESS YOU GET SATISFYING RELIEF!

"Numerous people who come into this store for medicines are really suffering because of a sluggish liver, declared a leading druggist the other day: 'What they really need is Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup to cleanse and tone the liver and build up the system so that they will feel their best again.'"

It is easy to tell when your liver is sluggish and clogged. Do you often feel dull and tired? Do you wake up with a bad taste, coated tongue, or offensive breath? Do you suffer from such symptoms as bad colds, sour stomach and gas, irregular movement of the bowels, or that tired, nervous, upset and depressed feeling? If so, take a spoonful of Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup after the next few meals and notice the quick difference in the way you look, eat, sleep and feel. You will be completely satisfied; otherwise your money will be returned.

Dr. Thacher's is sold and recommended by A. M. Lewis in Grayling and by all leading druggists in every city and town.—Advertisement.
